Google's not working? What?

Speaker 2

Uh, [laughs] yeah, the- [coughs] sorry. There are a lot of things going on professionally, personally. Everything which could have gone wrong is going wrong on very short duration of time, right? So it's like-

Speaker 1

Oh, wow

Speaker 2

... bam, bam, bam, bam, bam. If, if it would have been stretched over two, three months, I would have been a bit more capable to [laughs] take those kind of hits. Uh, but yeah, what- whatever the God decides. [laughs]

Speaker 1

You know, yeah. But, you know, I think it's important in moments like these when we can just take a moment and pause-

Speaker 2

Yes

Speaker 1

... and just breathe. Uh, you are with a friend here. You're not, you know-

Speaker 2

Yes

Speaker 1

... so do not worry. You're- you're- you're-

Speaker 2

[laughs]

Speaker 1

Just breathe for a moment. Just if you need a second to just sort of like get your thoughts together, it is all good, you know.

Speaker 2

Mm-hmm.

Speaker 1

I, I... Trust me, I know about life, uh, throwing you curve balls is what we call them here, where all of a sudden you think everything's going one way and then all of a sudden it's like, oh, we are not going that way. And in fact, we're doing the opposite. And ooh, that thing that I thought was working, it's not working either. And that other thing's like, wow. Like you say, it's like, you know, could we not have spread this out a little bit more-

Speaker 2

[laughs]

Speaker 1

... planned it out a little bit better? It's like, did the person have to get sick on that day and did the, you know, this thing that I thought was gonna happen not happen? And it's like all of them at once.

Speaker 2

All of them at once.

Speaker 1

Really? That's just-

Speaker 2

Yeah

Speaker 1

... okay. Yeah, so just remember, breathe, and it's okay. Uh, you know-

Speaker 2

Yes

Speaker 1

... we somehow make it through.

Speaker 2

Yeah.

Speaker 1

Uh, I don't know how most of the time, but somehow we make it through.

Speaker 2

No, no, definitely. And I think the times like this only makes you tougher, I think, because then you can, uh, you get a strength to fight for the next, uh, this kind of incident. Because what I feel is that you will always get these kind of things as you move ahead in life. So yeah, I think.

Speaker 1

This... You know, on the other hand, uh, if this is what it takes to get tougher, I wouldn't mind being weak.

Speaker 2

[laughs]

Speaker 1

I, uh, I'm okay being weak, you know? [laughs]

Speaker 2

I, um, yeah. [laughs]

Speaker 1

I'll just stay as little weak Lorenzo is fine. I'll, I'll settle for that, you know. And I'll just be fine.

Speaker 2

Yes.

Speaker 1

Thank you. [laughs]

Speaker 2

Yes. Oh, yes. [laughs] But how are things with you? How are things?

Speaker 1

They're good, thank you. You know, settling in over here in California, and things are going well. Um, tr- trying to get... There's just so many things on my to-do list that somehow every time I feel like I'm in control of it, it once again runs away from me and I'm like, "Wait, I thought I was in control. What happened?" And I'm not, so.

Speaker 2

So what I used to do for those kind of things, right, whenever I wake up in the morning, right? I'm just... Sorry, I'm just deviating from the purpose of this call, right?

Speaker 1

Yeah, yeah. It's fine. No worries.

Speaker 2

Uh, but I will not take more than 30 seconds. So whenever I wake up, I tend to feel anxiety, right? That I have so much things to do, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera. So I take notebook. I write down whatever is coming on my mind. I just write down all the tasks. And within 15, yes, within 15 minutes, my anxiety is gone. I don't-

Speaker 1

[laughs]

Speaker 2

I've not completed that, but it feels like anxiety is gone. [laughs] Don't know what's the logic.

Speaker 1

I know, right? It's like I haven't done anything-

Speaker 2

Yes

Speaker 1

... but I wrote them down, so that feels like I've done something.

Speaker 2

Yeah. [laughs] It is, it, it helps-

Speaker 1

Yeah, the problem is when I do that and, and the list ends up looking longer just because I'm like, "Oh, and I forgot about that, and I forgot about that other thing, and I for..." It's like, oh, well, I'm not sure this helped me much. [laughs]

Speaker 2

I, I, I cross those things. That makes me feel better. I cross, cut those things-

Speaker 1

[laughs]

Speaker 2

... it makes me feel better. I don't know, yes. Yeah, but somehow it, it helps me manage things.

Speaker 1

Because at least you feel like I may not be able to control anything else, but this little list-

Speaker 2

This little list, right

Speaker 1

... at least I wrote it. [laughs]

Speaker 2

Yes. Yes, yes.

Speaker 1

Yeah.

Speaker 2

Cool.

Speaker 1

So, um, so good news, I have done some thinking about just FYI the, um, on Drift. Uh, it- now people will look at it. We'll- I'll get you back some comments aft- you know, like I said, we're giving them some time. But, um, I had a conversation last week with, um, with someone in the church, and we were talking about, you know, that the, the age of agents is coming and what that will mean as... So we have two things. We have one, we have the reality of agents being able to do work and help and, and do that sort of thing. And two, we have a lot of church people that are scared of AI, period, much less when you talk about agents that actually have power to do things, right? So they're, they're like, "I'm not sure that those two things can go together very well." So we were thinking it's like the key would be to start with a small thing so that they can, so that, uh, clergy, ordained people in, in congregations can start to feel more comfortable handing over some of the work to, to, to agents to do. And definitely this has to be very sort of, uh-

Speaker 2

Boring work?

Speaker 1

For lack of a better word, uh, almost unimportant work in the s- it's more repetitive, sort of like, I have to do this or it won't get done type thing. So this brings us back to what we felt because again, I, I was, I was having a conversation with my friend about what would we do? How would we... What kind of agent would be the one to introduce to congregations that helps them? And the one that we thought about, because at some point in the probably not too distant future, somebody will do this for profit. Uh, they just won't-- What we're trying to do is get clergy more used to the idea of AI and agents, so. But somebody will make money from this, I am certain of it. But it would be to do a communications agent.

Speaker 2

Okay.

Speaker 1

And beginning with the, the simplest of all things that... The key, we, we, I don't know why we decided on this, but we decided it has to be a repetitive weekly, mostly weekly task that priests do to It has to be something that is two hours of their time at least that goes into this thing, that they're spending time doing, that they're just doing it. And so as we thought about it, we're like, well, the easiest one would be to create the bulletin, right? The Sunday little leaflet that they have. And what I should do is I should PDF, send you some PDF of some bulletins so that you can see what they look like, how they put everything. But the good thing about bulletins is that in Christianity, we follow what's called the revised common lectionaries, meaning that the readings are the same in all of our congregations every Sunday. Every Sunday, every church has the same reading because we follow the same sort of list of readings, right? And this list of readings is a three-year cycle. It goes year A, B, and C. And when you get done with year C, we go back to A and we start all over again. So it's relatively simple in the sense of it's you're just sort of reusing stuff that you've done before. The things that generally change, and you'll get a better idea of this when I show you what a bulletin looks like. But the things that generally change are perhaps the image on the cover, the songs, the music that will be used that Sunday, and the announcements at the end that people add at the end of a thing. So the thinking is like, well, and it generally just takes time to create it because you have to make sure that So having an agent that can ask the questions at the beginning, oh, what's coming up next? Oh, this Sunday. And you're going to learn more about this than you wish you knew. In the way that we do Sundays, right? This coming Sunday is Hold on a second and I'll tell you. This coming Sunday is First normal? No. Well, yeah, it is the first normal. You're right on that. But we actually have We call them by something else. So I will In fact, here, let me share with you.

Speaker 2

I know, I think, what you are saying. There are some headings because we are developing the app for Mike, right? I think we are adding that part. So there is a part where-

Speaker 1

Are you okay? So good. You already sort of have Let me show you. Lectionary page. There we go. Oh, wait. It helps if I actually share my screen with you. Where's my share? Share, share, share. Okay, here we go. Share. Okay. So this is the one that Episcopalians use, right? This is the one that we go to. And so what we do every Sunday, you see, what we call them is we call them propers. So this Sunday, it's actually a choice because notice how it's in a different color. It's in blue. I'm sorry, it's in white. It means it's a feast day. So whatever the congregation is, they get a choice. They can either choose to do the readings for All Saints, and these would be the readings for All Saints Day. Again, year A, revised common lectionary, All Saints Day. And these are all the readings, and these are literally the readings for that day, right? Or you can choose proper 26. So it goes proper 24, proper 25, proper 26, right? Today, by the way, is a feast day. This is why you see red. This is October up here. Today is October 28th. The feast of St. Simon and St. Jude apostles, and it's in red because they were martyred. So that's what this means. St. Luke was martyred. St. James was martyred. So this is All Saints here. And this, just FYI, so people would get to choose. If they don't choose All Saints, they would choose proper 26, which is just this. And so this is the types of questions that-

Speaker 2

Makes sense. Makes sense

Speaker 1

... that the bot would ask at the beginning would be like, are you certain, you know, this Sunday is All Saints. Are you going to use the same questions that an assistant would ask?

Speaker 2

Yeah.

Speaker 1

Are we doing All Saints or are we doing year A proper 26? And then if they are doing theoretically at the beginning of the season, they would have chosen whether they're doing track one or track two. The only difference, you'll notice that the second two readings are the same. Only the first two are different.

Speaker 2

Yeah, yeah.

Speaker 1

The only difference is whether or not they're sort of reading the scripture sort of as an ongoing thing. That's track one. Track two is more on a theme. The theme that these two use is the theme that these use. That's it. So it's either you're just reading it continuously or you're doing thematic. So anyways, going back here for a second. So anyways, you can also see here this, in the church, this is actually the last day of the year, November 22nd, the feast of Christ the King. Because the year begins for the church. So you'll notice this says, right, proper 29, year A.

Speaker 2

Yeah.

Speaker 1

Notice what happens the very next Sunday, the first Sunday of Advent.

Speaker 2

Yeah.

Speaker 1

Year B. We have switched over. The new year has happened for us.

Speaker 2

And then we see A, B, C.

Speaker 1

This is what, no longer are there choices.

Speaker 2

Yeah.

Speaker 1

When we're out of the regular season, the green season, ordinary time is what we call it. This is a season of Advent leading up to Christmas and no longer are there choices. So it just makes it easy. Anyways, so just to show you that it's all, and it just repeats, right? It's just a cycle that repeats. So if the bot Could ask, like, what is your, you know, uh, which readings are we doing? You know, are you, are you selecting? Which feasts are we doing? Uh, what songs are you doing? Now, there's a company-- Let me show you again. Let me, uh, share again my screen with you.

Speaker 2

Can we record these things?

Speaker 1

There is a company called OneLi... s, is it .net or licen- ah, OneLicense. There we go. Uh, it's .net. Okay, that's what I thought. So this company, I don't have a, a thing for this thing. I don't happen to have one. Uh, so but if you... Actually, let me show you without the login. Um, most churches throughout the country come here, and they pay a fee here based on the number of people in their thing, and they get One- it's called OneLicense, hence the name OneLicense, and they can use all the songs from here. And so in here are the songs that are available for them from all the publishers of songs and, you know, they're all here, blah, blah, blah, blah, blah. So the, the chatbot, at the beginning in setting it up, we just ask like, "Hey, what's the name of your church?" Right. The basic information could all be done at the beginning, including what's your OneLicense license number.

Speaker 2

Sure.

Speaker 1

Because then they can just log in, pull down the song. So someone can say, "All right, we're gonna do this Sunday, and we're gonna do All Saints, and these are the songs we're gonna do from the hymnal," you know, number blah, blah, blah. And when you go in there, it actually gives you the song as a, a JPEG.

Speaker 2

Yeah.

Speaker 1

So he just has to put the JPEG, right? And then, um, basically, most people won't change, um, won't necessarily change their formatting regularly. They-- Every Sunday, it looks pretty much the same. However, we can have templates, and we can say if somebody wants to use, for example, a special one because they're gonna be doing a bilingual service, they can say, "Oh, let me choose a bilingual template," and it has the readings both in English and Spanish side by side. And it, again-

Speaker 2

You give them the options, yeah

Speaker 1

... these are just, these are just templates that you put them in once, and the bot knows, like, "Okay, you're gonna go with template thirty-two. Perfect. I know what the readings are because I went to that thing, and I just asked a question, so it's told me what the readings are. I know what the songs are because it told me over there." Then the final thing that the person has to say, and maybe even in bullet points so that the AI can write it better, can be like, "What are the things you wanna mention in-- as the announcements?" "Oh, we have the apple picking festival." I don't know what people do. Uh, "The-- we get-- we're doing the feeding of the hungry." We're-- And it just writes it up, right, on those dates. Or it can even pull it from the church's own website calendar and say, "These are the things that are coming up," and automatically populate it for them. So if we could create one that's just does this, and it would be awesome if you're already doing it for Mike, because then you can just sort of repurpose it. Uh-

Speaker 2

No. The dates, the dates, the dates. [chuckles]

Speaker 1

Oh, got it.

Speaker 2

Only the dates.

Speaker 1

No, no. So, so if we can just create this one thing that does this, then we can easily, I think, get clergy to be more, uh... the ones, especially the ones that are scared. The early adapters are already trying to figure out how, how do I build a skill that can do this, or how do I... You know, they're, they're already figuring their own ways out. If we create-- The good thing about calling it a communications bot rather than, like, a bulletin maker is that then we can add other things to it like, "Hey, do you want me to help you with your newsletter?"

Speaker 2

Sure.

Speaker 1

Let me, uh... In fact, I remember, uh, this would've been like six months. I could never find it anywhere. I could probably search and find it. But there was a, there was a bot that somebody created that interviewed you, and then based on that interview, wrote a press release. You know, wrote some... So i-if we can save people time from doing their communications like, "Oh, let me just ask you a few questions about it," and then it writes it in whatever format that they want. And then at the bottom, yes, we put, "AI was used in the creation of this." It's perfectly fine. If it saves them time... So I am on purpose calling this what it is doing, what this bot is doing, is the unholy work of being a priest, so that the priest can go do more of the holy stuff.

Speaker 2

Yeah.

Speaker 1

Be with people, bless people-

Speaker 2

Yes

Speaker 1

... you know, just spend time with them at the hospital-

Speaker 2

Yeah, yeah

Speaker 1

... rather than working on like, "Why is my song not fitting in here?" You know, on the, on the bulletin.

Speaker 2

No, it makes sense. Makes sense. We can also do one more thing, right? Like once, before finalizing things, we can give a preview. Uh, and if they want to edit in between that, okay, they can do that, right? We can give some kind of tools to edit that.

Speaker 1

Yeah. No, absolutely. And where's my... I'm literally looking for the notebook that's right in front of me. Oh, this is good. I'm good. Um, there is-- I'm looking for an actual... Have you heard... I may have mentioned this to you before, but have you heard of [humming] Bear with me. I'll be right with you. I'm looking for it. Um, oh, that was the speech I gave over there. Um, I swear, my notebooks just have so many of everything. Oh, here we go. Have you heard of Opus Clips?

Speaker 2

Opus.

Speaker 1

O-P-U-S. Here, let's go to it together. Uh, let me share my screen again.

Speaker 2

Yeah, we do editing clip.

Speaker 1

Hold on. Um-

Speaker 2

Can you send me, can you send me that license one, the URL?

Speaker 1

Oh, yeah. Yeah, it's just... Here, I'll put it in the... It is... Oh, well, hold on. I'll just go back here for a second. It's easier because it'll do the whole HTML, um, the whole HTTPS, blah, blah, blah, blah, blah. Um, okay, now here we just go forward. Uh, Opus Clips, it's this one. So what this does is you, you enter a video and it au- Ugh, hold on. I need to move myself here so I can remove myself from here. You enter a video, and it automatically adds the captions, does the... It makes it ready, right, for social media. And I discovered there was this priest in Virginia that I was at his church preaching, and he just feeds it his sermon from online. He says, "This is my sermon." And it finds what are the best parts from the sermon and clips them, and puts together, and posts it for him. So it's like it's saving so much time and making them more active in social media. So here, I'm sure you're gonna wanna see this, so I'm already gonna copy it and paste it for you [laughs] 'cause I'm that kind of guy.

Speaker 2

So basically, uh, you are recording it, and then it is choosing the best parts of it, and it is creating a video out of it, right?

Speaker 1

It's not only creating a video, it's creating a video for social media and posts it for you.

Speaker 2

Oh.

Speaker 1

So on S- on Sunday morning, hence the agent part, right? On Sunday morning, imagine a priest, if especially those that are already filming their services, right, on YouTube or Facebook, that if there's a bot, and this, this would be, like-

Speaker 2

Phase two

Speaker 1

... phase two.

Speaker 2

[laughs] I know. I know.

Speaker 1

Phase two. Yeah, right. [laughs] But imagine if on Sunday morning-

Speaker 2

Mm

Speaker 1

... you're able to just, uh... Since you're already live, the bot, after the service, goes, gets the video, knows what the sermon part is, cuts out what it thinks are the best parts, puts the captions on and maybe a little bit of music on it or something-

Speaker 2

Mm-hmm

Speaker 1

... because it understands what you're talking about, and then gets them, a- and posts them. Now, what I understand from... His name was, uh... I forget his name, so it's irrelevant. What I understand from the priest was that he doesn't yet trust it enough to post it on his behalf, so it prepares it and puts it there as a, a draft, and then all he has to do is post.

Speaker 2

Post.

Speaker 1

But once o- He says, "I'm getting to the point that I trust it enough now that, that it's doing the right thing, that all I have to do is just let it go-

Speaker 2

Yeah

Speaker 1

... and it will post it on my behalf. That way I can finish on Sunday my, the service and not have to worry about and know that it'll get done." Again, time saving. If it, it's something that they do repetitively every week, it saves them time. It's more than two hours that they're spending doing these things.

Speaker 2

Wow. Yeah.

Speaker 1

And these are the things that if we build it, I think that they will come, they will try it, they will use it, and be like, "Oh, I don't need to be so afraid of this thing. Might as well lean into it since it's already here."

Speaker 2

Uh, I completely agree, and if I be... Can I be honest?

Speaker 1

Yeah, of course.

Speaker 2

I think this is the most viral idea which we have discussed ever, if I be really honest, right?

Speaker 1

[laughs]

Speaker 2

This communication app, especially the bulletin one, right?

Speaker 1

How dare you?

Speaker 2

No, I... Because-

Speaker 1

I think the Drift app is amazing

Speaker 2

No, Drift app is amazing, but I think-

Speaker 1

[laughs]

Speaker 2

... you will find very-

Speaker 1

No, no, no. I think-

Speaker 2

Yeah

Speaker 1

... I think this is commercially viable.

Speaker 2

Yes.

Speaker 1

There's a difference.

Speaker 2

Yes. Yeah, and the thing is that peop- you will get people onboarded very easily to try this app because there is nothing going. It's, like, very easy for them. They are already doing it. They are already doing it.

Speaker 1

Yep.

Speaker 2

So why not try this app, right? So I think this is a-

Speaker 1

Yeah

Speaker 2

... very good idea. Let me do one thing. Let me get back to my team. Let me create a proposal, and then you can tell me [laughs] when to start. [laughs]

Speaker 1

[laughs] I will tell you this is way too expensive. You'll go back. So let's just skip that phase and just come back with your [laughs] price.

Speaker 2

Yeah, I know. I'll... Th- this time I'll let you-

Speaker 1

Yeah

Speaker 2

... do the quote. [laughs]

Speaker 1

I would love to be able to have this ready so that we can launch it in the new year, in quarter one.

Speaker 2

Sure.

Speaker 1

Like, so we can launch it in January. I would love to be able to have it enough and ready to go in January. So chin check.

Speaker 2

We'll do that. We'll do that. So maybe I, I'll block some time on your calendar for next week with that proposal-

Speaker 1

Yeah

Speaker 2

... and then we can talk. Are you okay if just let me see-

Speaker 1

Perfect

Speaker 2

... are you... Let me see if the timing is good for you.

Speaker 1

I, I will look. I'm not traveling, so I'm in town, and this is good because soon thereafter I will be traveling again. Um, let me look at my calendar.

Speaker 2

Oh, it's very, very... Oh, fuck.

Speaker 1

[laughs]

Speaker 2

[coughs] This daylight savings is making us worse, making things, uh, worse for us.

Speaker 1

Oh, yeah.

Speaker 2

Do you think-

Speaker 1

I, I think if I'm... Hold on a second. Hey, computer, when does daylight savings time end or start? I don't even know.

Speaker 2

First November. First November. First-

Speaker 1

Okay. So we go back an hour on this Sunday. Yeah.

Speaker 2

First November. First November. [laughs] Because all of my meetings-

Speaker 1

Yeah, yeah, yeah. [laughs]

Speaker 2

... I'm, I'm struggling with my, all of my meetings. [laughs]

Speaker 1

Oh, trust me, I do the same thing. I was supposed to be meeting with someone in, uh, who... She's in Per- in Panama, and they're already ahead. The same with, like, England and stuff. I am, I am-

Speaker 2

Oh, boy

Speaker 1

... confirming with people. I'm like, "Listen, I'm gonna put down the time. I'm gonna send you the invitation now on Outlook, and you tell me if it's the right time." [laughs]

Speaker 2

You tell me if it's the right time. [laughs] Oh, man, it's a common problem. [laughs] And sometimes I tell you honestly, right, I searches that, uh, convert this to IST. Google does not sometime understand. I mean, yeah, but cool.

Speaker 1

[laughs]

Speaker 2

I'll, I'll block some time-

Speaker 1

I hear you

Speaker 2

... on your calendar, and then we'll talk.

Speaker 1

Perfect. I do have time available next week, so please do.

Speaker 2

Thank you. Thank you so much. Feel free to reach-

Speaker 1

And if you wanna send me the proposal in advance, don't worry about the price on the, on the proposal, just so that I can see that you're putting all the things and see if there's anything missing, so that if there's anything missing I can go back and be, "Oh, can we add this on phase one?" Keeping in mind that there's phase one to phase two.

Speaker 2

Cool.

Speaker 1

And, and we'll go from there.

Speaker 2

Awesome. Awesome. Thank you. Thank you so much, Lorenzo, and thank you really soon-

Speaker 1

You're welcome

Speaker 2

... for this new project. [laughs] Thank you. Looking forward to it.

Speaker 1

You're welcome. This, this is gonna be good.

Speaker 2

Yes. Yes. Best thing of my day.

Speaker 1

All right.

Speaker 2

Thank you.

Speaker 1

Thank you, and just remember-

Speaker 2

Yes

Speaker 1

... just remember, Parag, every once in a while, just take a moment to breathe. You will get through all of this at once.

Speaker 2

Yes.

Speaker 1

It's timing is awful, but just remember, you'll get over... You'll get through it, and just, just every once in a while, remember just... What would Loren- Just say, "What would Lorenzo tell me to do?" Just breathe.

Speaker 2

[laughs] Yes.

Speaker 1

And y- [laughs]

Speaker 2

Thank you. Thank you so much.

Speaker 1

All right.

Speaker 2

It means a lot. Thank you.

Speaker 1

Be well, buddy.

Speaker 2

Thank you. Bye.

Speaker 1

Bye-bye.
